Regarding: Hydrazine Sulfate and the Pharmacy Compounding List

Dear Madame/Sir:

The FDA should be ashamed of itself and so should Mayo Clinic and Dr. Loprinzi. The purpose of research is to get at the truth, not to support some group's profit motive. Mayo Clinic certainly discredited itself as believable when it designed a study of vitamin C in precisely the way that Dr. Pauling said would neutralize the positive effects of vitamin C or even make things worse. What else can one conclude other than Mayo Clinic set out to create false results to discredit vitamin C.

A similar trick has already been pulled on hydrazine sulfate. Fortunately that has been exposed to the public.

What we need are some honest, competent researchers in institutions untied to the purse strings of the mega pharmaceutical companies. I sincerely hope you will live up to your mandate to serve the welfare of United States citizens. In this I fully support your good efforts.

Sincerely,

Dewey Lipe, Ph.D.
